

Ballet Tiburon – Fall 2024 Tuition Rates

August 26th through December 20, 2024 (Holidays: 9/2, 11/27-11/29)

For children, we require a base number of classes per week so that your child can safely learn ballet skills and techniques. Pre-Ballet and Minis should take one or two classes per week, Junior Levels 1 and 2 take two classes per week, Junior Level 3 takes three classes per week, Junior Level 4 takes four classes per week, and Junior Level 5 should expect to take five classes per week.

The levels are based on technical capability, so the age ranges listed are referenced as a guideline only. Exams will be given each season to determine if the child is ready for the next level. We also have limited availability for private instruction for students wishing to accelerate their technical progression. We will have a holiday showcase towards the end of the semester; rehearsals will take place in class.

For adult and beginning teen classes, some choose to attend once a week to keep moving, while others take class multiple times a week to maintain flexibility and improve technique. Using body resistance, ballet is an excellent workout to build strength and stamina.

The beginning teen and adult classes will start with positions, body alignment, coordination, strengthening legs and feet, stretching, turns, light jumping. The adult/Intermediate advanced class is a higher-level class that has full barre and full center including adagio, turns, and jumps. This is a great class if you were a previous dancer, if you are looking for a more challenging workout, or if you have had some ballet exposure and are looking to learn advanced techniques.
